Yes, there is a risk of capital loss. As you only invest in Kering shares with KeringForYou, you're fully exposed to the evolution of the share market price. It is recommended that employees planning to subscribe consider whether to diversify their personal portfolio.

11 What payment options do I have?

You have one way to pay for your subscription:

After submitting your subscription request from May 19 to June 9, 2022 on the subscription site, BNP Paribas will confirm your final subscription amount.

Once you receive the final confirmation, you will need to make a wire transfer of your investment to the Kering bank account by June 30, 2022 at the latest.

The Kering bank account details for the wire transfer of your investment are indicated on the website www.KeringForYou.com and on the document entitled Local Supplement.

12 With what currency do I pay my subscription?

You will pay your investment in local currency. The exchange rate used will be fixed on May 17, 2022 and communicated along with the subscription price.

Please note that your investment in local currency will be converted to euros at that exchange rate, then invested in Kering shares.

13 When should I make the wire transfer to the Kering bank account?

You should make a wire transfer of your investment amount to the Kering bank account by 30 June 2022 at the latest. The process to be followed will be detailed after your subscription.

The assets you invest in the KeringForYou fund are locked in for 3 years. They become available on July 2025.

However, there are 4 situations which allow for early exit for all or part of your assets before this date.

The 4 scenarios to exit early are:

Disability of the employee, their spouse, their civil union partner or a dependent child.
